2016 GEMN Global Mission Conference
“God’s Mission with a World in Continuous Motion”
May 18-20, 2016 Ponce, Puerto Rico

Conference Overview

The Global Episcopal Mission Network (GEMN) is dedicated to giving you the tools you need for global mission. We are the independent mission network in the Episcopal Church, dedicated to proclaiming, inspiring and igniting the joy of God’s mission. GEMN consists of dioceses, churches, organizations, and individuals who are passionate about engagement and connecting people through mission.

GEMN holds an annual Global Mission Conference designed to create a forum in which those having a passion for global mission engagement can meet, learn, and exchange ideas. We hope to provide a space for continuing discernment of where God is leading us next as the hands and feet of Christ, as a church, as individuals, and as God’s people.

Each year we select a timely theme to explore, and this year’s theme was put forward by our brothers and sisters in Province IX, which includes Dioceses in Central America, South America and the Caribbean:

“God’s Mission with a World in Continuous Motion”
”La Misión de Dios con un Mundo en Continuo Movimiento”

Migration, relocation, forced displacement, poverty, environmental degradation, and violence are certainly some of most critical issues that the world is facing, affecting virtually every area of global mission activity. We have invited Presiding Bishop Michael Curry, Episcopal Migration Ministries, and a panel of speakers from around Province IX to help us understand the impact, the experience, the vision, and the hope we have in ministry with those affected by a world in motion.

In addition to keynote speakers, we will hold a series of workshops designed to give you practical tools that you can bring back to your diocese, church or organization. Workshops will include mission trip leadership and fundraising, applying Asset-Based Community Development tools in your ministry, starting a refugee program, developing and maintaining mission relationships, discerning a call as a missionary and more. You will have opportunities to network with mission partners, talk with current missionaries, visit local mission sites, and attend our in-depth Global Mission Formation or Train-the-Trainer Programs.

We hope that you will join us in beautiful Ponce, Puerto Rico to learn, share and connect with others in global mission.

Keynote Speakers

Workshop Descriptions

The Jesus Movement in a Time of Migration

Michael Hunn (Wednesday, Sessions 1 & 2)

Description: Are you interested in the question of what the “Jesus Movement”, as articulated by our new Presiding Bishop Michael Curry, will look like in this age of rapid change and uncertainty? How will we live into the vision that is millennia-old in turbulent modern times? Participate in this thought-provoking conversation with the Rev. Canon Michael Hunn, Canon to the Presiding Bishop for Ministry Within the Episcopal Church, exploring how the church can keep up with Jesus on the move, amid crisis, migration, and change.

The Role of the Church in a Refugee’s Life and Reconciliation in the Rwandan Crisis

Jean-Baptiste and Christine Ntagengwa (Wednesday, Sessions 1 & 2)

Description: Dr. and Christine Ntagengwa plan to share with the audience a chronology of essential facts in the Rwandan crisis as a background to our talk about what really happened during the genocide and thereafter. They will briefly discuss how the church became a source of everything in their life after 1994 until today. Ultimately, they will address the issue of reconciliation among Hutu and Tutsi in Rwanda and suggest what the role of the church should be in the reconciliation process. To be able to have enough time for questions and answers, they kindly request that those who plan to attend their workshop make every effort to watch these documentaries prior to attending: <https://vimeo.com/107867605> and <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=L5pAg5uwr9E>.

Mission Discernment

Elizabeth Boe/David Copley (Wednesday, Sessions 1&2)

Description: Is God calling you to step out in mission? Are you being called to engage more fully and for a longer period of time in the mission field? What are the signs of this call and how do we engage in the discernment process? With years of combined experience in the Office of Mission Personnel and Young Adult Service Corps training and support, Elizabeth Boe and David Copley can help you to navigate the complexities of testing your call to long- and short-term mission.

Missionary Work for Integral Development: The Experience of the Cuban Episcopal Church

José Bringas (Wednesday, Sessions 1 & 2)

Description: Dr. Bringas, Director of the Office of Mission Development in the Cuban Episcopal Church, will share a rare and unique glimpse into the Cuban perspective and experience of mission, including paradigm shifts in the work of mission; an overview of the effectiveness of its mission and its socioeconomic, environmental and ecclesial impacts; ongoing diocesan projects, enterprises and savings groups; and lessons learned and best mission practices within the Diocese of Cuba. Dr. Bringas’ presentation will be in Spanish with translation.

Reconciliation: Testing Our Mission by God’s Vision

Titus Presler (Wednesday, Session 1)

Description: “In Christ, God was reconciling the world to God . . . and entrusting to us the message of reconciliation” – so wrote Paul to the Corinthians. Thus reconciliation is God’s mission, and reconciliation is the mission that God entrusts to us. Yet amid our many mission activities – education, healthcare, water quality, women’s empowerment, climate change, short-term trips, inter-religious encounter – how focused are we on reconciliation? In pairs and in group discussion, workshop participants will be invited into the practical exercise of examining their mission activities in light of God's mission of reconciliation and exploring how to realign their work with God's vision.

Not Alone but in Companionship: Anglican Mission Resources

Titus Presler (Wednesday, Session 2)

Description: Congregations and dioceses are bursting out in mission activity today. Yet many parish activists are unaware of Episcopal and Anglican events and resources that can support and give context to their work. This workshop will explore such events and resources as: mission agencies at the Episcopal Church Center; the Anglican Witness initiative; 2015 General Convention decisions relevant to mission; 2016 Primates Meeting and Anglican Consultative Council decisions relevant to the Episcopal Church; Anglican Indaba; the Anglican Mission Theology initiative; missional aspects of the Book of Common Prayer; the Anglican Cycle of Prayer, and the like.

Refugees of Central America: New Models for Response

Noah Bullock (Thursday, Sessions 3 & 4)

Description: This workshop will explore conceptual and legal frameworks on internal displacement, trafficking and slavery, and the determination of refugee status and their applications to the humanitarian and refugee crisis in Central America's Northern Triangle. This will be a unique opportunity to learn about the most contemporary advancements in the application of international human rights and humanitarian standards to the new forms of violation in one of the world's most violent regions. Participants will be presented case studies drawn from actual cases assisted by Cristosal's human rights team and learn how the international community and local human rights organizations are responding to non-traditional armed conflict and innovating assistance models for victims. This workshop is ideal for anyone interested in deepening their understanding of human rights work or of the current crisis in Central America.

Seafarers...Hidden Migrants, Hidden Souls

Ken Hawkins (Thursday, Sessions 3 & 4)

Description: Every day they come and go, unheralded, required, ignored, on working ships traveling the seas, carrying ninety percent of world trade: lumber, apples, cars, airplane parts, luxury goods—everything we buy. For 1.3 million seafarers, the sea is the highway on which they work, and live, and occasionally die. Their job: "dollars for homesickness," as one of the Filipino ratings (non-officers) described it, or as "prison with a salary." Life on a modern container ship for most of the world is almost certainly lonely and usually punishing. Working on contracts of nine months to a year, they work and live far from home, unable to communicate with family and friends for days, weeks, and occasionally months at a time. We will discuss the poverty of spirit, the isolation and loneliness of these economic migrants, how we greet them, and how we build networks of volunteers to support them.

Displaced Persons/Displaced Assets

Sean McConnell (Thursday, Sessions 3 & 4)

Description: When war, poverty or natural disaster drives people from their homes and communities, they lose touch with the support systems they have grown to know and trust. How can an asset-based approach serve those who have fled from the lives they know to new and uncertain surroundings? This workshop will give a basic overview of Asset-Based Community Development (ABCD) and its practical application among those who have been displaced by conflict and disaster.

Meet the Missionaries

YASC & Long-term Missioners/Suzanne Peterson, Moderator (Thursday, Sessions 3 & 4)

Description: Have you ever wonder what it is really like to serve in a long-term mission placement? Now is your chance to meet, ask questions, and learn from both adult and young-adult long-term missionaries currently serving in all parts of the world through The Episcopal Church Mission Personnel Program and the Young Adult Service Corps. This panel discussion will give you a glimpse into the challenging and transformational experience of living and working on a long-term basis in a context outside of our own from a variety of perspectives.

Public-Private Partnerships and Faith-Based Organizations: The Case of Voluntourism

David Searby (Thursday, Sessions 3 & 4)

Building on decades of experience in the State Department, Mr. Searby will discuss building public-private partnerships with nonprofits and faith-based organizations, the many lessons learned, best practices, and also an innovative model of how voluntourism might be used by faith-based organizations. As an entrepreneur in this emerging partnership concept, Mr. Searby will describe his exploration of a new form of public-private partnership focused on voluntourism, designed to build upon and complement the great work that The Episcopal Church is carrying out around the world.

Mission Trip Fundraising

Bill Kunkle (Thursday, Session 3)

Description: Are you daunted in the face of raising money for your next mission trip? Do you need some new approaches to this tough but necessary component of mission? In this workshop we will explore issues related to fundraising, ways to conduct effective fundraising campaigns, and discuss a number of different fundraising ideas. Discover the best methods for getting your mission trip funded and off the ground.

Preparing Your Team for a Mission Trip

Holly Hartman (Thursday, Session 4)

Description: Does your parish have an interest in forming a relationship with a partner parish or organization elsewhere? Are you thinking of traveling there, but just don't know how to go about leading it? Leading a parish mission trip can be a daunting task unless you're equipped with skills and knowledge. This interactive workshop will discuss a wide range of topics, including current trends in short-term mission trips, how to prepare physically, emotionally, and spiritually for a trip, and how to engage in prayerful reflection before, during, and after the trip to make the journey more meaningful for all. This workshop will introduce you to the practical things you need to do to help your team prepare for a trip, and also offer current resources that can be used in the preparation and formation of your team.

Local Site Visits

Friday, May 20 - 1:30 pm to ~3:00 pm

We will be departing by bus from the Howard Johnson Hotel after lunch on Friday, May 20 to visit local sites of interest and significance to the region. The majority of us will visit the Holy Trinity Parish and Reconciliation Parish sites. A small number of us, approximately 15 on a first-come, first-served basis, will have the opportunity instead to visit the Hogar San Miguel, the only orphanage in the city of Ponce. It is managed by the Diocese of Puerto Rico and can only accommodate a small number of visitors. We will travel by bus to the sites, and then on to the San Lucas Hospital complex where we will celebrate our Final Eucharist at Misión San Lucas Evangelista. Afterward, we will attend a Cultural Night and Carnival sponsored by the Episcopal Health Service and held on the Hospital grounds.

Holy Trinity Parish, 1872:

The Iglesia de la Santísima Trinidad (Holy Trinity Church) was organized by British residents in Ponce, Puerto Rico, as an Anglican congregation in 1869. They built their first church of wood and metal at this site in 1873, aided by materials sent by Queen Victoria's government, including a bell cast in England in 1870. It has the distinction of being the first Anglican church built on the island and in all of Latin America.

After the Spanish Republic fell in 1874, the monarchy was reinstated. Religious intolerance returned, and colonial authorities ordered Holy Trinity church to close. At the intervention of Queen Victoria and the British Consulate, the Spanish crown allowed the Church to function under certain conditions: the front doors were to remain closed, the bell would not be allowed to ring, and no services could be held in Spanish. These measures remained in effect until July 25, 1898, when United States troops entered Ponce. On that day, parishioners rang the bell to greet the soldiers and celebrate the restoration of religious liberty. This bell is still known as the Freedom Bell by the residents of Ponce. The church structure was replaced in 1926, with a synthesis of English neo-Gothic and Spanish-colonial styles. The 1870 bell was installed in the new church.

The synthesis of styles, technologies, and cultures represented in this building, along with the history of the congregation it serves, have been admired and respected by the people of Ponce. It is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Hogar San Miguel (NOTE: Only a small number of visitors can be accommodated at this site):

Hogar San Miguel provides shelter and psychological, therapeutic and social service for child abuse victims and children with HIV. Over the last 15 years has been the only home for hundreds of children and young people from five to 18 years, victims of HIV and those removed from their families by Child Protective Services.

With the alarming rise in HIV rates during the 1980s and 90s, large numbers of children were being born with the deadly virus. Father Efrain Ayala and Ms. Evelyn Romero were given the task of founding a home for children born with HIV and for those who were orphaned or in families where they experienced abuse through dysfunction or through fear of the disease. Hogar San Miguel opened in April 1994 and, with the support of the community, began to offer basic services plus support and treatment to help them heal their wounds. They were offered protection and all necessary assistance to achieve good overall development, offering expertise in the areas of physical, mental and spiritual services in a loving way. Hogar San Miguel is a home where children can thrive in peace and security, surrounded by love and care. Children are offered education, recreation, clothing and all services necessary for recovery, including medical, psychological and social services.

Reconciliation Parish, 1900:

The beginning of this congregation is unique and unusual. In 1900, former Roman Catholic priest Manuel Ferrando came to the island with his wife Edith to start an independent mission called the Church of Jesus. This Church had its own theological center, schools and a cemetery, having a great impact on the development of this region of the Puerto Rican countryside. In 1923, it became part of the Missionary District of the Episcopal Church and in 1924 Father Ferrando was consecrated Bishop Suffragan of Puerto Rico during the episcopate of Bishop Charles B. Colmore.

The church reminds us of a Spanish castle. In the 1930s, the Parish began a school and agricultural program for the poor and unemployed people of the countryside. It opened the first clinic of Saint Luke Hospital and food pantry within the Parish. In the 1940s, it established the first vocational school on the island. In the 1950s the parish rector, Fr. Antonio Nistal, helped the community in the construction of its first asphalt road, as well as water, telephone and electrical services. The current Bishop of Puerto Rico, The Rt. Rev. Wilfrido Ramos Orench, was rector in the Parish from 1981-1984. In the 1990s the Parish established the Greater Feast of the Three Wise Men held annually in January and considered to be the best musical and cultural festival in the southern part of the island. Today Reconciliation celebrates over 100 years as a parish and is one of the most important congregations in the rural area of Ponce. This service to the community continues in witness to the love of God in Jesus Christ.

Hospital San Lucas:

In 1872, the first Episcopal Church in Puerto Rico was established in the city of Ponce, and several decades later, in 1906, a group of parishioners began to build a hospital. Their philosophy was to relieve and heal the sick of all religions, races and nationalities. In 1907, with the support of the Missionary Society of the American Episcopal Church, the building of the old Hospital San Lucas became possible and St. Luke's Hospital was born.

The old Hospital San Lucas was a wooden construction of a single floor, with spacious galleries around it. In 1912 a second floor, built with zinc roofs, stairs and wooden balconies, in the style of old Puerto Rico was added. At that time the renowned Hospital School of Nursing was founded. The earthquake of 1919 and the 1928 San Felipe destroyed the hospital facilities, but in 1931 a new building, more spacious and modern, arose.

In 1945, St. Luke's Hospital became a pioneer of health services that integrate physical, mental and spiritual aspects of the individual. That year nuns of the Order of the Transfiguration also arrived, including Sister Esther, serving the needy community for almost 40 years.

"The mission of the hospital does not recognize political, spiritual or racial distinctions; our goal is to relieve physical pain wherever it exists ..." Dr. Roy J. Stokes, Director of the San Lucas Hospital, 1941-1961

In the '60s a new obstetrics wing was built, the Maternity Unit was inaugurated and health programs began at the House & Home Health San Pablo. Home Health currently has presence in 54 municipalities and Hospicio San Lucas today covers 64 municipalities, providing services such as graduate nursing, physical and occupational therapy, speech and language therapy, nutritional counseling, social services, health aide services, medical equipment, and enteral feeding.

In 1982 new hospital facilities were opened and that year the first private cardiovascular center was established on the island, where cardiovascular surgeries have been performed since 1983. In 1991 the Ambulatory Surgery Building was inaugurated. In 1998, the Regional Hospital of Guayama, which is called Christ Redeemer Episcopal Hospital was purchased, and in 1999 Episcopal Health Services, Inc., was incorporated in order to centralize all health services of the church under the same structure.

Original Hospital Buildings

The purchase of the Regional Hospital of Ponce was completed in 2000, in order to consolidate hospital medical services for the entire region. In 2007, its centennial year, the San Lucas Medical Tower was also inaugurated. The new medical complex is known as the Hospital Episcopal San Lucas Ponce and offers cutting-edge technology, making this world-class facility available to patients in Latin America, the Caribbean and beyond.
